During the town-hall meeting on December 2nd 2022, the President of the 77th Session of the United Nations General Assembly, H.E Mr Csaba Körösi shared his priorities and perspectives on Sustainable Water Management and civil society engagement... (seen below)

“...In 2023, following a preparatory high-level event in 2022, the first comprehensive United Nations conference on water since 1977 will be convened. The best time to stop the downward spiral of multifaceted water crises was yesterday, but the second best time is now. Let these years be ones in which a breakthrough is achieved. The International Decade for Action, “Water for Sustainable Development “2018-2028, will be at its halfway mark. It offers a perfect opportunity for us to face our options, integrate our water and climate agendas and make sure that breakthroughs will lead to more predictable and safer development, as well as increased international confidence and security...”

The African Action on AIDS Representative, Ms Yoko Komori Olson suggested that AAA's proven track record focusing on Water Wells in schools be used to encourage worldwide support - Check <http://africanactiononaids.org/outcomes/>
